Response to Amendment

1. Applicant's amendment and arguments of July 8, 2008 have been entered.
2. Applicant's arguments have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.
3. The text of those sections of Title 35, U.S. Code not included in this action can be found in a prior Office action.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. Claims 1-4 and 7-14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Yie (US Patent 4,478,368) in view of Lee et al.

Yie '368 discloses a spray nozzle comprising a cylindrical nozzle body and a nozzle mouth piece; the nozzle body includes a centrally arranged inner tube 20 and an outer tube 86 as recited; the inner tube being connected to a supply of substance to be sprayed and the outer tube being connected to another supply and forms a lance base in a bottom region; and the inner tube is mounted in a receiving block 14 which is detachably attached in a tube 63 arranged in a fixed manner on a lower region of the lance base and which can be removed from the tube as recited and parts attached to the inner tube being easily dis-assembled and re-assembled (such as collar 15), and an attachment device which connects the nozzle detachably to a processing housing 81. Lee et al. teaches using a tri-clamp attachment 9 to hold various parts together. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have modified the device of Yie by providing a tri-clamp attachment to detachably connect the nozzle to the processing housing as taught by Lee et al. Yie does not disclose the inner tube being connected to a substance as recited or the outer tube being connected to a supply of gas, however, it has been held that a recitation with respect to the manner in which a claimed apparatus is intended to be employed does not differentiate the claimed apparatus from a prior art apparatus satisfying the claimed structural limitations. Regarding claims 2 and 3, since Yie also discloses an o-ring seal 67, placing seals at the locations as recited would have been obvious matters of design choice through the teaching of Yie. Yie also discloses an insert 75 as recited in claim 4, and making the insert exchangeably connected using a metal seal set would have been a matter of design choice as would have been making the outer tube to be detachable from the lance base as recited in claim 7, since Yie has already disclosed the capability to detach various parts of the device.

5. Claim 5 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Yie (US Patent 4,478,368) in view of Sun et al.

Yie discloses the structural limitations of the instant invention including a nozzle mouth piece 40, wherein in the region of the piece 40, an add-on part 30 guiding the inner tube 20 is arranged in an annular gap between the outer tube 86 and the inner tube 20 and is rigidly connected to the outer tube. Sun et al. teaches a nozzle for spraying liquid substances comprising a swirl body 3. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have modified the device of Yie by providing a swirl body as has already been taught by Sun et al.

Conclusion

6. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
